What happens once I apply for a position at Washburn Center for Children?

Once you have submitted your resume electronically, you will receive an electronic notification acknowledging receipt of your resume. If you submitted your resume via mail or fax, you will receive an electronic notification to your listed e-mail address. If no e-mail address is listed, you will receive a paper acknowledgement to the address listed on your resume.

Resumes are received by the Human Resources Department and initial screening is completed to ensure candidates meet the requirements of the job. Resumes are then forwarded to the hiring supervisor for review. The hiring supervisor will determine which candidates to move forward in the interview process and will contact candidates to set up the initial interview. If you do not receive a call regarding your resume, Washburn's HR staff or the hiring supervisor have determined that you are not a strong candidate for the position.

What if I have questions about the position?

Because of the large number of applications received for our job openings, we discourage contacting the HR department or the hiring supervisor to follow up on the submission of your resume. However, if you do not receive an electronic notification or mailed acknowledgement from Washburn Center that your application was received, you may contact the HR Coordinator to confirm receipt. If you have specific questions about the position, you may contact the HR Coordinator or the HR Director for more details.

How do I apply for more than one position?

If you want to apply for more than one position within Washburn Center, you will need to complete the application process for each position. Simply go to each job posting that you are interested in pursuing and complete the application process as noted above.
